

White Flyer Targets to Manufacture Biodegradable Targets in California

As the leader in producing biodegradable targets for the shotgun sports, White Flyer Targets is pleased to announce that as of June 2009, our target plant in San Bernardino, California will be producing biodegradable targets for shooters in the Western United States.

Joining the other White Flyer Target plants in Missouri and Pennsylvania, the San Bernardino plant has spent the last year developing a new biodegradable production line. This will now make the White Flyer Biodegradable targets more readily available and at substantial savings to gun clubs in the western United States.

Beginning in June 2009, White Flyer distributors will be able to order through our California Plant and get these biodegradable targets quicker than ever. If you have never tried these bio targets at your club, we suggest that you go to our White Flyer website, www.whiteflyer.com, and see what is available and how they will work.

The White Flyer Biodegradable target is the only “bio target” on the market that contains NO petroleum by-products. Don’t be fooled by imitators that state their targets are “biodegradable” or “environmentally friendly” – they still contain petroleum pitch.

For more information on ordering the White Flyer Biodegradable, go to our website and locate the distributor nearest you. Full details on the performance of the White Flyer Biodegradable are also available on our website at www.whiteflyer.com.
